GWA Named a Finalist in 2013 CDN Channel Elite Awards

Nominated in the Best Service Organization Category, Toronto-area technology services provider GWA is recognized for their continually high quality customer service.

Toronto, Canada – August 13, 2013 – GWA Business Solutions, Inc., provider of software and technology consulting services, with expertise in manufacturing, warehousing, distribution, job costing, retail/POS, recruiting and CRM, was selected by Canada’s leading technology digital news-magazine Computer Dealer News (CDN) as a finalist nominee in the 2013 CDN Channel Elite Awards in the Best Service Organization category.

As a software and service organization that specializes in helping customers get “Solutions That Fit™,” GWA is honored to be recognized for their high level of commitment to servicing their customers through this nomination. GWA is no stranger to recognition as they were nominated by the CDN Channel Elite Awards in 2011 as a finalist in the Best Small Business Solution and Solution Provider of the Year award categories. Also in 2011, Gail Wilson, GWA President and Founder, was recognized in the top 25 Women in the IT Channel by CDN. Under Gail’s leadership, the GWA team continues a long standing tradition of providing excellent service and value for their customers. According to Gail, “It’s imperative that our customers implement software that will meet their needs now and in the future, and to have the processes in place to support their operations. Our methodology and service ensures exceptional results for our customer. We take great pride when our clients meet or exceed their goals. ”

With 30 years experience in the technology industry, providing top notch service through their professional certified consultants and technical team is a cornerstone of GWA. Their customers rely on the expert knowledge and prompt response to issues or questions, and GWA delivers. GWA’s customers appreciate the ongoing straight shooting approach to solving their issues. Not only does GWA consult with their clients, they dig deep and aren’t afraid to tell clients the hard realities in order to go above and beyond solving the issue. Training and education provided by their expos and a highly anticipated yearly customer conference confirm GWA’s commitment to customer service. Dave Schofield of Savage Arms shared his GWA conference experience, “The conference allowed me to learn about resource planning and information management solutions, applicable to small and medium sized business. I liked having the wide variety of vendors and workshops to create a customized learning experience.” These events and the high service levels make GWA a standout in the technology service sector.

GWA’s mission to match customers’ needs with the right software and their commitment to providing timely, high quality customer service, along with a track record of improving their customers’ business results has earned the nomination in the Best Service Organization category in the 2013 CDN Channel Elite Awards. As an award finalist, GWA is invited to the gala evening event at the Paramount Conference & Event Venue on September 11, 2013 where the Gold, Silver and Bronze winners will be announced.
